Who is a Candidate?

(1) “Candidate” means a person who knowingly and willingly takes affirmative action for the purpose of gaining nomination or election to public office or for the purpose of satisfying financial obligations incurred by the person in connection with the campaign for nomination or election. Tex. Elec. Code § 251.001(1)
§ 252.001. Appointment of Campaign Treasurer

Each candidate and each political committee shall appoint a campaign treasurer . . .

All candidates must file a campaign treasurer appointment regardless of whether they plan on accepting/spending campaign funds.
Who is a Candidate? Example #1

- Travis is thinking about running for the justice of the peace for his county. He believes people in the community know who he is and what he stands for and therefore doesn’t plan on spending any money or accepting any money in connection with his campaign. On January 1, he tells his friend that he’s thinking of running and asks her if she thinks it’s a good idea. Q: Is he candidate?

- A: No. No statement of definitive intent, no request for support
Who is a Candidate? Example #2

- Travis decides to run but still hasn’t filed a CTA. Travis decides that he wants to stand in front of a banner at his public announcement that reads: “Elect Travis Justice of the Peace.”

He buys a large banner at the local print shop. Q: What has Travis done wrong?

- A: He made a campaign expenditure before filing a CTA. He became a candidate and did file a CTA.
Bonus Round: What’s wrong with the ad?

- “Elect Travis Justice of the Peace.”
- No political ad disclosure. Elec. Code § 255.001.
- Highway right-of-way disclosure? Elec. Code § 255.007
Political Advertising: Mini Lesson

  - Pol. Ad by [name of person who paid or candidates name if authorized by candidate]
- Don’t misrepresent identity
- Don’t misrepresent true source of ad
- Don’t make it seem like you hold an office you don’t hold
- Put a highway right-of-way disclaimer if meant to be seen from a roadway
